is Made.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, June 13.—The principle of women suffrage was endorsed here today by the general federation of women's clubs. The motion was made by Mrs. E. G. Denniston of San Prancisco, chairman of the resolution committee.

There were seconds from all over the house, but Mrs. James Lee of Kentucky, insisted on being heard and read a paragraph of the lymnlike women's creed. Others would have spoken, but Miss Lutte E. Stearns of Milwaukee, objected.

"I don't see why there should be any discussion," she said, in a voice that shook with emotion. "Eight million women are waiting for us, as Mrs. Cary Chapman Catt said in her address last night, the women of the world are waiting for our action to day."

When the question was put there.

Chicago, June 13.—A fifth bank was closed today by the state bank examiner in connection with yesterday's closing of the LaSalle Street trust and Savings bank. This bank and the state bank of Calumet, the examiner said, completes the chain of what were known as the Lorimer-Munday banks in Chicago. Two state bank examiners from Spring-field arrived today to assist in the examing of the live banks now in the state banking department's hands. William Lorimer, president of the La Salle street bank, was said to be near a physical collapse.

on board steamer New York by wireless via Siassonette, Mass., June 13.—The Hamburg-American liner, Pretoria, bound for Hamburg, collided with the American liner New York, during a dense fog at 3:28 r. o'clock this morning. The blow was a glancing one and the New York was a minipred.

No panic of undue excitement prevaled about the New York, as the passengers were not even awakened. Because of the fog, the New York was stopped at the time of her accident. She later proceeded on her voyage to miles east of the Nantucket light ship.

MEXICAN EMBARGO STOPS GRASS SHIPMENT USED AT STATE PENITENTIARY

AT STATE PENITENTIARY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Waupun, Wis., June 13.—Shipments of sisal grass or American aloe, used at the state prison here in manufacturing binder twine, have decreased greatly in the past few weeks because of the Mexican embargo.

A great deal of the grass used here has, until lately, been secured largely from the troublesome country to the south. Unless relief is secured shortly, officials at the prison fear that the output of the plant will be greatly cut down.

At the present time, according to Suverintendent Connor, there is enough grass stored at the factory to keep the machines in operation until the first part of October.

The raw sisal is received in great bundles and is stored in the big concrete room on the first floor of the bindery plant. From that floor it is hoisted to the second floor where it goes through processes of carding, straightening and twisting until it emerges in balls of finished twine.

Ambassador Walter Heinz Page was at the station to meet the former president and with him were the members of the embassy staff, Lieutenant Colonel Arthur Hamilton Lee, former British military attache at Washington, and now a conservative member of parliament, R. Newton Crane, of the American society in London and a number of other Americans.

"My visit to England is purely of a social and scientific one. I have come her to lecture before the Royal Beographic society on the subject of my discoveries and adventures in Brazil and also to meet friends. I will not discuss politics with American English or French."

This was the reply of Colonel Roosevett to a bombardment of questions from newspaper men. The colonel was questioned in every possible subject. His reply to every question was: "I have nothing to say," or "No, you may not expect a statement from me."

Madison, Wis., June 13.—Women policemen for dance hall supervision and control of youth on city streets; stricter enforcement of curfew ordinances; greater supervision of parks; curbs on promiscuous joyriding; application of the eugenic marriage law to women; and, above all, continued education as to the degenerating influence of the double standard of morals, were all recommended as additional safeguards against vice, by witnesses before the anti-vice committee of the Wisconsin legislature Friday. Dr. J. W. Quinn, humane officer for Dane county, declared that when men of intelligence in Madison openly advocated several public houses in the city, the need of a vice committee is absolute.

Moral conditions surrounding rural and village schools were discussed by W. E. Larson, state inspector of rural schools, and J. B. Borden, assistant state superintendent. Mr. Larson told of the bad influence of obscene markings in schools and outbuildings and in railroad stations. Bad language, often spoken by adults in presence of children, was deplored as a means of exciting unmoral suggestion. Some of the worst conditions were found in smaller places, said Mr. Larson. Trouble comes because local authorities, afraid to cause friction by accusing anybody, allow the conditions to continue unabsted. State laws prescribing penalties or withholding public aid were advised to remedy such situations.

Mr. Borden suggested legislation re-

No. 12-Why Girls Should Learn To Save

"The young woman who knows from experience just how money is earned and how it may be judiciously expended and profitably invested is far on the way to a high plane of living."---Prof. W. A. McKeever.

Three billion dollars is the estimated amount spent

Three billion dollars is the estimated amount spent annually for the upkeep of the ten million or more homes in the United States.

Most of this money is expended by women and girls.

Most of this money is expended by women and girls.

Does this not show the great importance of training young women in the value and use of money?

Some time ago a prominent household magazine asked 500 bachelors why they did not marry and settle down. Noted of these men replied that the average marriageable young woman nowadays is too oxpensive a luxury. Many asserted that young women of today are money aquanderers rather than the material out of which thrifty helpmeets are made.

"Why can't we have bills? Then we could put all the people off," argued a bride of a few months with her young husband, a professional man, striving to make his way on an income of $1,500 ayer. She was the product of a first-rate boarding school, and the child of a family high in social position. But she was utterly unednested in the morals of handling money.

The word morals is used advisedly because a true view of economic life requires that every expenditure be regarded as an act that involves a moral question, for an unnecessary and unwise expenditure is a misuse of the power of money.

Whose fault is it?

Very little of the blame can be put on the girl herself. Her parents must shoulder it, and they in turn will say that the times are responsible.

But there are signs that people are becoming more sensible. At any rate the organization of the Parents' League among rich people in New York is significant.

"We hope to make it fashionable to be sensible and unfashionable to be foolish," Mrs. John Hays Hammond said in outlining the plans of the organization which has been formed for the purpose out uning parents and tenderers in establishing wholesome, common sense standards for the education, amusement, and home life of children.

Parents of working girls also cannot escape responsibility. Suppose your daughter is employered in an office of factory at

Cases of shis kind could be multiplied by the score. These boys made themselves in the rough and tumble experience of a trying position, and the great, busy world had a place for them when they were able to assume responsibility.

Many young men sigh for capital, and think if they only had money, they would show the world how to do business. There are just two requisities demanded by capital, which young men possessed of this kind of ambition would do well to remember. The first is absolute honesty combined with thrift and economy, which creates a bank account on a moderate income.

The second is the ability to make the most money of combined with thrift and economy, which creates a bank account on a moderate income.

The second is the ability to make the most money with money and both require the policy had been considerably more utils and you will be able to keep the city many states they never have a chance to be anything else. The criminal class is not all behind the bars because they never have a chance to be anything else. The criminal class is not all behind the bars because the most of us have never been tested.

The man who borrows from the till expecting to replace the loan the next day, elpoys a reputation for honesty, and so has access to the till, which is so frequently plun, dered, as now being done in our attention of money with money and so has access to the till, which is not multiple to the policy of the many attentions of the policy of t

We all admire the man who can hold a crowd on a street corner for an hour while selling some worthless nostrum, and turn away with the thought that the fellow would have made his mark as a salesman, had his energies been property directed.

Two boys were engaged in laying out a volley ball court, the other day, and the hard task of digging the post holes was a trying experience. Finally the older boy was called away and he said to the other: "You go on and finish the hole, Jimmie, and I'll give you a nickle," and so for an hour the younger boy worked away with his hands and a small stove shovel until the task was completed. COMMENCEMENT STARTS AT MILTON COLLEGE

[av Associated Press.]

Milton, Julie 13.—Commencement week at Milton college began last evening with an address by Professor Harris U. Barbour, professor of philosophy and bistory in the college, before the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations. The excellent music was furnished by the college choir under the direction of Professor Stringer.

In presenting the speaker President Daland said, "There are some people who do our thinking for us. There are others who make us think." Professor Barbour has this great gift and gave his large audience a thoughtful and thought inspiring address. His subject was: "The Challenge of the Spirit."

He said: "The life of the spirit is in

He said: "The life of the spirit is interesting because it is an 'inner' life. It is seemewhat difficult to instity the term 'inner'. Certainly it does not mean 'inside the body,' nor does it refer to thought about immaterial things. Rather, it seems to mean an indepedent life with original sources, 'wells of water springing up.'

"But the life of the spirit is even more interesting because it has not fixed boundaries. The spirit feets like the crystal surface of a deep lake in winter like a settlement in a virgin forest. At times it is large and includes much of the independent world of spirit. Again it is small and superficial.

"This makes the spiritual life a real quest. Like Greek explorers setting out on unknown seas, so we set out in the spirit, not knowing what we may find. Jesus reached limits. He seemed to press against the body which could not express all that he was. But we cannot believe that the body sets ultimate limits. Shall we not resolve to have our purpose to axplore more strong? And when the last barriers break, let us never doubt but that we are setting out on an eternal quest."

Tuesday morning a powerful touring car with a llimois license whizzed past residents on Milwaukee avenue. Motorcycle Policeman Harry Smith was close behind and was opening his machine nearly to the limit to escape the dust that the scorcher was leaving behind him.

Officer Smith finally caught up to the auto and brought them to a prompt stop; with the words, "You're placed." In the car with the man was a number of boy scouts going to Lake Mills for a day's outing.

"I wasn't going over twenty," explained the driver.

"Tell it to the Judge. What's your name?" inquired Smith.

"Longnecker," was the eanswer.

"Come on and quit kidding: I want your real name," demanded Smith.

After considerable discussion the man was allowed to proceed to Lake Mills on the agreement be return to Dairyman for $500 Consider.

CALIFORNIA CHERRIES REACH LOCAL MARKETS

California cherries are appearing on the Janesville markets and other products of this state in the fruit line will be offered for sale shortly. Approducts of this state in the fruit line will be offered for sale shortly. Apples are on the wane and high prices govern their sale. Lemons are scarce and high in price, being sold at from thirty to forty cents per dozen. Janes ville fruit dealers declare that the strawberry crop this year will be a short one and will not last on the market for any length of time. Oranges and banahas are of good quality and are moeting with a ready sale.

Closing week for vaudeville at the Myers offers a very special bill. Each act is a hit, each a headliner. Crowds have greeted every performance.

Barton, Talbot and Bray have a good comedy act and are better than the average vandeville trio of comedy and harmony singers.

Emmett's Canines are a troupe of wooderfuly trained dogs. Unusually conditions a special feature act of special merit.

Regular motion picture program is included in each performance. Matinee tomorrow at 2:30.

Four High School Literary Societies Finish Most Successful Season at Janesville High School

The four literary societies at the Janesville high school have just concluded a most successful season in all branches of activity. As literary talent at the school was far above the average found in the majority of preceding high school society members, the success in this line has been most speedy. Current events of every nature have been discussed, thus creatasset in winning coming debate titles. The girls' clubs occasionally have taken up debate work, but their work in studying literature, such as current thors, has been their strong study.

In athletics the girls' clubs have not participated to any great extent. In fact, during the past year, the boys have been too husily engaged in their meeting work to think about sports. The church league of the city took to a large extent the very life of the Janesville high school. Without the societies, a turn to a lack of social activities would result, without a doubt. The clubs hope for another such sea-events, and old works by famous au-son in social activities as they have experienced during the past nine months.

Mr. J. T. Sheafor, critic of the For-um, has modeled all of the societies ing among the members a craving for this literature. The members have become broad-minded as a result of the meetings, and are interested in political as well as social happenings. In debate, the boys societies, the Forum and Rusk Lyceum, have devel-oped material among the younger members that should prove a valuable

MRS. HENRY

Ey Selene Armstrong Harmon.
It's a neat little sum she has set out to raise—only two million dollars.
That is what Mrs. Henry L. Dimock, one of the most prominent and popular members of New York and Washington society, intends to do in order to commemorate the father of her country. Few women have ever undertaken a patriotic enterprise of bigger proportions.

Some years ago there occurred to Mrs. Dimock the idea of erecting at the national capital a great practical memorial to our first president. She conceived the plan of a building with a main auditoruim big enough to hold eight or ten thousand people, and with a number of small assembly rooms, the whole to be used as a gathering place for the national patriotic, scientific and educational and literary societe's of America that are constantly meeting at Washington.

Already more than thirty-five thousand children have shown their interest in this children's wing by the purchase of pins.

Mrs. Dimock and those associated with her have interested congress in the proposed memorial to Washington ton to the extent of a donation which has been made by that body of a valuable grant of land as a building site. This is a plot of ground near the Smithsonian institution on which the old Pennsylvania station stood in years gone by.

More than $500,000 towards a building fund has already been raised by Mrs. Dimock and her associates. This has been contributed in sums of the nearts by children; in sums of $1 by citizens throughout the country in membership and life membership fees in the association of larger amounts, and in donations ranging from one hundred dollars to one thousand dollars, and made by such men and women as the late Pierpont Morgan, J. Reasons for the return of many American farmers who migrated to Canada, attracted by the big wheat crops possible there, are found in a report of a commission appointed by the province of Saskatchewan. The cost of growing wheat in that province during the last year was found to be 55 cents a bushel, or 62 cents f. o. b. at country points. This leaves a mighty slim margin, according to the department of agriculture, for farmers to gain a profit.

The long, rigorous winters have also proven too much for Americans in many instances and numbers are asking for certificates which will permit the return to the United States of their household effects.

The cost of producing wheat in Sasketchewan, the Canadian provisional commission found, has increased over 12 per cent since 1909, and the price has increased since that time from 81½ cents a bushel to 66½ cents in 1913, leaving the farmer a profit of only 4½ cents a bushel.

Percheron are the favorite breeding horses imported by American breeders, according to recently gathered statistics just made public by the department of agriculture. Next in favor for importation are Beigian thorses, with Clydesdales "also ran."

In 1913, 882 Percheron stallions and 600 mares were imported. Of Beigiums, 621 stallions and 362 mares were try while only 45 Clydesdale stallions and 29 mares were imported last year, while 128 Shire stallions and 57 Shire mares were brought in. The total importations for the year of high bred increase were 1,733 stallions, including ponies, and 1,264 mares.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by Iccal applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustnehlan Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

By Edward Everett Hale

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Mary Roberts Rinehart and Owen Johnson was "The Man Without a Country," by Edward Everett Hale. His works are

And then the old man took off his own sword of ceremony and gave it to Nolan and made him put it on. The man told me this who saw it. Nolan cried like a baby, and well be might. infernal day at Fort Adams.

The captain did mention him in the dispatches. It was always said he hushed the men down, and said: asked that he might be pardoned. He "He says 'Not Palmas." PART II.

OLAN must have been in every sen and yet almost never on ' world lived so methodical a life as he. "You know the boys say I am the Iron Mask, and you know how busy be He said it did not do for nuy one to try to read all the time more than to do arything else all the time. but that he read just five hours a day, Theu," be said, "I keep up my note books, writing in them at such and reading, and I include in them my scrapbooks." These were very curious indeed. He had six or eight, of different subjects. There was one of his tory, one of natural science, one which he called "odds and ends." But they were not merely books of extracts from newspapers. They had bits of plants and ribbons, shells thed on and carved scraps of bone and wood, which he had thught the men to cut for him, and they were beautifully illustrated.

Till he grew very old, he always went aloft a great deal. He always kept up his exercise, and I never heard that he . was ill. If any other man was ill be was the kindest nurse in the world, say a word or to do a thing that shall and he knew more than half the surgeons do. Then if anybody was sick or died, or if the captain wanted him to on any other occasion, he was always stant home to his own heaven. Stick ready to read prayers. I have remark-the war, on my first voyage after I nearer and nearer to your thought the was appointed a midshipman. It was farther you have to travel from it, and in the first days after our slave trade treaty, while the reigning house, which was still the house of Virginia, had still a sort of sentimentalism about the suppression of the horrors of the Midd'e l'assage, and something was sometimes done that way, I first came to her as she bids you, though the service understand anything about "the man without a country" one day when we overhanled a dirty little schooner which had slaves on board. An officer was sent to take charge of her, and after a few minutes he sent back his beat to ask that some one might be sent him who could speak Portuguese. We were all looking over the rail when the message came, and we all wished we could interpret when the captain asked who spoke Portuguese. But none of the officers did, and just as the captain was sending forward to ask if any of the people could. Noian stepped out and said he should be glad to interpret if the captain wished, as he understood the language. The captain thanked bim, fitted out another boat with him. and in this boat it was my luck to go.

When we got there it was such a scene as you seldom see and never want to. Nastiness beyond account. and chaos run loose in the midst of the hastiness. The negroes were, most of them, out of the hold and swarming all round the dirty deck, with a central throng surrounding Vaughan and addressing him in every dialect and patois of a dislect, from the Zulu click up to the Parisian of Beledeljereed.

As we came on deck Vaughan looked down from a hogshead on which he had mounted in desperation and said "For God's love, is there anybody who can make these wretches understand something?"

Notan said he could speak Portuguese and one or two fine looking Kroomen were dragged out, who, as it had been found already, had worked for the Portuguese at Fernande Po.

rascals are to be hanged as soon as we can get rope enough.

Nolan explained it in such Portuguese as the Kroomen could under stand and they in turn to such of the negroes as could understand them. Then there was such a yell of delight clinching of fists, leaping and dancing, kissing of Nolan's feet and a general fush made to the hogshead by way of spontaneous worship of Vaughan as

"Tell them," said Vaughan, well pleased, "that I will take them all to Cape Palmas."

This did not answer so well. Cape Palmas was practically as far from the homes of most of them as New Orleans or Rio Janeiro was-that is, they would be eternally separated from home there. And their interpreters, as we could understand, instantly said, "Ah, non Palmas," and began to propose infinite other expedients in most voluble language. Vaughan was rather disappointed at this result of He had not worn a sword since that his liberality and asked Nolan engerly what they said. The drops stood on poor Nolan's white forehead as he

Vaughan always said he grew gray himself while Nolan stroggled through land. He told me once, with a this interpretation. I, who did not ungrave smile, that no man in the derstand anything of the passion involved in it, saw that the very elements were melting with fervent heat and that something was to pay somewhere. Even the negroes themselves stopped bowling as they saw Noinn's agony and Vaughan's almost equal agony of sympathy. As quick as he could get words, he said:

Tell them yes, yes. Tell them they shall go to the Mountains of the Moon if they will. If I sail the schooner through the Great White desert they shall go bome!"

And after some fashion Nolan said so. And they all fell to kissing him and wanted to rub his nose with theirs. But he could not stand it long, and, getting Vaughan to say he might go back, he beckoned me down into our boat. As we lay back in the stern sheets and the men gave way, he said to me: "Youngster, let that show you what it is to be without a family, without a home and without a country. And if you are ever tempted to ily, your home and your country, pray God in his mercy to take you that inby your family, boy. a self, while you do everything for them. Think of your home, boy. Write and send and talk about it. Let it be rush back to it when you are free, as that poor black slave is doing now. And for your country, boy," and the words rattled in his throat, "and for that flag," and he pointed to the ship. "never dream a dream but of serving carry you through a thousand hells. No matter what happens to you, no matter who flatters you or who abuses you, never look at another flag, never let a night pass but you pray God to bless that flag. Remember, boy, that behind all these men you have to do with, behind officers and government and people even, there is the country herself, your country, and that you belong to her as you belong to your own mother. Stand by her, boy, as you would stand by your mother if those devils there had got hold of her to-

> I was frightened to death by his calm, bard passion, but I blundered out that I would, by all that was boly, and that I had never thought of doing anything else. He bardly seemed to hear me, but he did, almost in a whisper, say, "Oh, if anybody had said so to me when I was of you age!" I think it was this half confidence of his, which I never abused, for I never told this story till now, which afterward made us great friends. He was very kind to me. When we parted from him in St. Thomas harbor at the end of our cruise I was more sarry than I can tell. I was very glad to meet him again in 1830, and later in life, when I thought I had some influence in Washington, I moved beaven and earth to have him discharged. But it was like getting a ghost out of prison They pretended there was no such man and never was such a man. They will say so at the department now!

There is a story that Noisn met Burr once on one of our vessels, when a "Tell them they are free," said the Matter and Day 100 Bart in the Mediterranean. But this I believe to be a lie; or, rather, it is a myth, well found, involving a tremendous blowing up with which he sunk Burr-asking him how he liked to be "without a

After that cruise I never saw Nolan again. I wrote to him at least twice a year, for in that voyage we become even confidentially intimate; but he never wrote to me. The other men tell me that in those fifteen years he aged very fast. And now it seems the dear old fellow is dend. He has found a home at last, and a country.

Since writing this I have received from Danforth, who is on board the Levant, a letter which gives an ac-count of Noian's last hours. It removes all my doubts about telling has story. To understand the first words of the letter the nonprofessional reader should remember that after 1817 the position of every officer who had Nolan in charge was one of the greatest delicacy. The government had failed to renew the order of 1807 regarding him. What was a man to do? Should be let him go? What, then, if he were called to account by the department for violating the order of 1807? Should he keep him? What, then, if Nolan should be liberated some day, and should bring an action for false imprisonment or kidnaping against every man who had had him in charge? The secretary always said, as they so often do at Washington, that there were no special orders to give and that we must act on our own judgment.

But I had no thought it was the end. I thought he was tired and would sleep. I knew he was happy, and I wanted him to be alone.

But in an hour when the doctor went in gently he found Noian had breathed his life away with a smile. He had something pressed close to his lips. It was his father's badge of the Order of Cincinnati.

We looked in his Bible, and there was a slip of paper at the place where he had marked the text:

Do You Remember how mother would cuddle you up close to herself in the rocking chair or tuck you in one of those dear old cradles of the time when it wasn't a crime to have rockers on the cradle? And as she rocked and sang "In the Sweet Bye and Bye;" "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." or "Twinkle, Twinkle," you just felt yourself slipping away into dreamland until you never could remember the last words she sang. And these ald lullables are better today than they ever were.

You Can't Put Baby to Sleep with the modern ragtime or the latest popular hit of the day. Musical though they may be, none of them have that soft, soothing effect, which those old-time lullables sung by your mother had on the baby in the cradle—and the memory of which still affects us deeply in maturer years.

MRS. LYON'S ACHES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.-"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lyd a E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches-pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terre Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health - many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

A WAY OUT

A Resident of Janseville Shows the Way.

There's one effective way to re lieve kidney backache.

Liniment and plasters may relieve it;

But they seldom reach the cause.

Backache is cause to suspect the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for dis-ordered kidneys. Janesville people back them up.

Read a case of it.

Read a case of it.

Mrs. Eliza Johnsen, 118 N. Terrace
St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble and rheumatic pains for ten or twelve years.
My kidneys seemed to get clogged and did not filter the poison from my system. I got weak and almost helpless at times. My joints swelled and were very sore. It seemed that I could get nothing that would relieve me. Finally I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply at the People's Drug Co. I was soon feeling better and my kidneys gradually got stronger. All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills when I recommended them two years ago, holds good. I have just as much confidence in them now as I did then. I often tell other people to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I know they are the best kidney remedy to be had."

"T suppose you'll play the convict?" "Good God, what else could I play?" Andrew stopped suddenly and looked down at Wentworth.

"You'll kill your reputation as a comedian.

"Perhaps you'll be interested in knowing that I've thrown up my part in 'The Left-over Bachelor.' No more doddering idiots for me! Why, it will be easy sledding to get this on."

"Andrew, you're a steam engine."

"A hundred!" whispered Wentworth. He dropped into the chair beside the are and covered his face with his hands. The room had grown dark and it was so silent that when a cinder fell from the grate it made him start to his feet. He searched for a small brass key on his ring, hurried into the library, and unlocked a drawer in the: desk. He took a slip of paper from, a yellow envelope and stood staring at for several minutes. His brows wrinkled and a curiously startled expression came into his eyes. "Old man, I'm sorry, blamed sorry. Some day I'll show you I'm grateful, I couldn't sleep last night, I lay thinking of something I can do for you when my production begins to pay. I'm going to drag you away from the everlasting grind. We'll go to Switzerland next summer and carry out your dream. We'll sit on mountain tops, crane our necks over the edge of a crevasse, and skid down a glacier." "I'd rather go back to bed," growled

Wentworth. "You lazy old duffer, you may go in second, only I want to talk to you about the luckiest sort of accident. Last night I ran across a fellow who's rolling in money. He's crazy to get in on a theatrical venture. We can catch him, I know. I want you to have a big share, to manage the thing and make all you can out of it." "Did you tell him it was—your play?" Enoch's tone was brusque.

"No, I thought I'd break that gently. He thinks now I'm a devil of an actor; he might imagine I couldn't have s much versatility; that my play might be of the brand some actors turn out."
"Good," cried Enoch, warmly. "You have more sense than I gave you cred! "Really? Now, old pal, go back to bed. But tell me first when I can see I want a long talk with you."

"Make it four. I've a pile of worl to do before that time." "All right, four o'clock. Good-by." Wentworth hung up the receiver and passed a hand across his forehead; it was cold and damp. He did not re turn to bed, but dressed hurriedly pausing once or twice to stare at himself in the mirror. His face looked unfamiliar. It seemed to have aced.

At four o'clock Enoch sat in his library. He was so absorbed that he Then he he lifted his eyes Merry stood before him. Wentworth stared for a second before he took the outstretched hand.

Merry had changed. He looked young, handsome and vivacious—he was better groomed. A few stems of Roman hyacinths sat jauntily in his buttonhole. His trimness seemed odd in contrast to the old whimsical carelessness, as if he had already achieved fame and was living up to it, dressing up to it. These were the thoughts that flashed through Wentworth's mind while Merry took his hands affection ately between his own. His friend sat down half perplexed, half anxious.

"Say, old man, aren't you well? You look groggy." "I'm well enough."

"You're working too hard, you al-ways did!"

Wentworth did not answer. His eyes were studying a pattern in the rug beneath his feet.

"Say, Enoch, you're going to tend to the whole business, aren't you?" The newspaper man lifted his eves "Yes, I'm going to tend to the whole business. I'll make it the finest production that New York has seen in "Good!" Merry jumped up and flung his arms around the shoulders of the older man.

"Sit down," said Enoch. "We're going to talk business." He rose, walked to his desk, and emptied a drawerful of papers on the table. Merry watched him with a puz zled expression. "You never guessed, Andrew, that your ambition was mine?" Enoch did not lift his eyes or pause for a reply. "For years and years and years I have dreamed just one dream, only onethat some day I might produce a great play. See how I worked!" He swept the manuscript into an untidy heap. There were thousands of sheets. He had written on paper like onion skin. It looked like toil—one had a feeling of years of toil-after a glance at the laboriously interlined and reconstruct ed sentences. Wentworth crushed it mercilessly into loose bunches and be gan to lay the pages by handfuls upon the reviving fire. A little flame climbed up and kindled them into a wavering

"Here, here, Enoch, old fellow," cried Merry, "don't!" There was s thrill of compassion in his voice. "Say, ion't-this is a wicked thing to do." Wentworth paid no heed to him. He his other hand, while a cussy expression was floating over his features. "Where is that antiseptic salve, Minnie?" he demanded almost roughly. "That infernal parrot of yours has bitten a chunk ou tof my hand!" "Oh, Jimmy," returned wifey in a complaining voice, "I do wish you would be more careful. You know very well the bird dealer told me not to let that parrot taste meat under any circumstances."

"Pardon me," apologized Jones, blushingly, "it was very rude of me, I know ,but I couldn't help noticing your slippers."
"I see," smiled the young woman, good naturedly. "What do you think of them?" exclamled Jones, with large emphasis; "they are simply immense!"

The lecturer said impressively: "Every time I see a young man coming out of a saloon I want to go up to that young man and say: "Turn right around, young man; you're going the wrong way."
